The 2018 JK PRECONFERENCE WORKSHOP

Referentiality in Asian Languages

November 28 (Wed) 1-5:30 PM @ Royce 306, UCLA

1:00 Opening

1:10 Tsuyoshi Ono (University of Alberta, Canada) and Sandra Thompson (University of California, Santa Barbara, USA)

(Non-)referentiality in an expert-novice conversation

1:40 Hongyin Tao (UCLA)

Generic references to person in Mandarin Conversation: An interactional perspective.

2:10 Xiaoting Li (University of Alberta, Canada/UCLA)

Referring to persons with language and the body in Mandarin interaction

2:40 Seongha Rhee (Hankuk University of Foreign Studies)

Afloat in the sea of referentiality: The case of pronominal reference shifts in Korean

3:10 Sung-Ock Sohn (UCLA) and Kyoungmi Ha (California State University, Long Beach)

Language and body of the first-person pronoun in Korean conversation

3:50 Susan Strauss (Penn State University), Jongoh Eun (Defense Language Institute, Monterey, CA), and Shigeko Sekine (Cal State University, Monterey Bay)

Street signs, Dunkin', traffic lights, knots, and my homemade soup -- transcending imagined spatial representations through verbs, determiners, and deixis in American English, Korean, and Japanese.

4:20 Saori Daiju (UCLA) and Tsuyoshi Ono (University of Alberta, Canada)

The Japanese demonstrative are 'that' and non-verbal movements in everyday conversation

4:50 Reijiro Shibasaki (Meiji University, Japan)

Versatility of nominal predicates and the emergence of pragmatic markers in Japanese